VII 次の英文を読み、下の問いに答えなさい。

It does not matter what the problem is, for the British the answer is often the same: 'Let's have a nice hot cup of tea.' Coffee has become very popular in Britain in recent years, but tea is still the national drink. Over 25 million cups of tea are sold every day, and many millions more are made at home.

In 1610 tea was brought from China to Europe. At first it was very expensive so not many people could buy it, but by 1750 it was widely drunk in Britain. By the late eighteenth century, Britain was at the center of the world tea business and soon afterwards the tradition of taking afternoon tea, either at home or in a tea shop, began. Afternoon tea is a pot of tea, and a light snack (perhaps some small thin sandwiches and a piece of cake) served around four o'clock in the afternoon. A 'cream tea' is tea served with scones and cream, and you can find the recipe for scones at the end of this book.

Tea shops became popular with women because they could go there alone, to meet friends.

( ① ) the mid-nineteenth century, tea has been brought to Britain from India, Africa and Sri Lanka as well as China. Today there are over 1,500 different kinds, for example, Assam, Darjeeling, Oolong, Earl Grey and English Breakfast. Each one has a different smell and taste. The traditional way of making tea is:

1 Boil some fresh cold water.

2 Put some hot water into the tea- pot to make it warm.

3 Pour the water away.

4 Put one teaspoon of tea-leaves per person, and one extra tea-spoon, into the pot.

5 Pour boiling water onto the tea.

6 Leave for a few minutes.

7 Serve.

( ② ) the usual way to serve tea was to put a little cold milk in a cup, pour the tea (using a tea-strainer — like a spoon with holes in it — to keep the tea-leaves out) and then add some sugar. Tea-making has changed a lot in the last few years however. Most people now use tea- bags instead of tea-leaves because it is easier, and many use a mug instead of a cup and saucer. Tea is often made in the mug, without a pot (to save time) and many people no longer add milk and sugar.

Because tea-bags are so popular, the companies who sell them are always trying to make them better. At first tea-bags were square, then round ones were made, and now you can buy three-sided ones! Maybe the way people make tea has changed over the years but in this country of tea- drinkers, many people still use the old Chinese word for tea and like nothing better than to have a cup of cha or even just a good old cuppa*<sup>1</sup>.

VII 次の英文を読み、下の問いに答えなさい。

Going to a restaurant for a meal, instead of eating at home, is called 'eating out'. Only a few years ago this was too expensive for most people; today the British do it a lot more often and there are many different kinds of places to go.

Walk through any town center today and you will find coffee shops where you can buy a drink and perhaps a sandwich or cake; snack-bars where you can get light meals; and waiter-service restaurants where someone takes your order and brings the food to your table.

Schools, colleges, companies, etc. usually have a self-service restaurant called a cafeteria where you buy your food and take it back to your table. An evening meal in a restaurant usually has three courses. The first course is quite a small one called a starter. It may be something like a soup or salad or some sea-food. The next course is the main course and is the biggest of the three. This is usually meat or fish with vegetables, or vegetarian food. The last course is either something sweet — a dessert, like fruit, cake, or a piece of pie — or a cheese plate, which is pieces of different cheeses with biscuits and grapes. Some people have both! The meal usually finishes with tea or coffee and perhaps a mint chocolate.

All three courses can be hot or cold, and if the main meal comes with potatoes, you can choose which kind you would like. With beef and sometimes fish, ①you are asked how you would like it cooked: well-done (cooked for a long time), medium, or rare (not cooked for long). In the bigger cities you can find restaurants with mostly fish or vegetarian dishes, or food from other countries. Chinese and Indian restaurants have long been popular in Britain, but people love going to other kinds of restaurants, like Thai, Turkish, Moroccan or French. Although you can find these restaurants in most places, there are certain areas of London where you can find many together. In Chinatown, for example, you can find food from many parts of China, and in the West End there are a lot of Thai restaurants. Indian food is by far the most popular, and there are many Indian restaurants in Wembley, Southall and the East End of London.

Indian food comes from the south Asian countries of Pakistan, Nepal, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka as well as India. In 1950, when most Indian restaurants were run by people from Asia, there were only about 300 Indian restaurants in Britain. In the 1950s and 1960s many people moved from south Asia to Britain and in the seventies and eighties Indian food became much more popular.

Today there are over 8,000 Indian restaurants in Britain, and many are run by British Asians — people born in Britain to Asian parents. The most common Indian dish is a curry, which is meat, fish or vegetables cooked with different spices. One of the most popular Indian dishes in Britain is chicken tikka masala which is pieces of chicken in a spicy sauce, and not a traditional Indian dish at all, but a British-Indian invention!

(問 1) 以下の問いの答えとして最も適当なものをア~エから選び、記号で答えなさい。

1. What is the main problem that people faced when going to restaurants a few years ago?

- ア The food was not reasonable.
- イ There were not many different kinds of places to go.
- ウ The service was slow and inefficient.
- エ The restaurants were always crowded.

2. What is the main course in a three-course evening meal in a restaurant?

- ア A small course called a starter.
- イ A sweet course like fruit or cake.
- ウ Meat or fish with vegetables, or vegetarian food.
- エ Pieces of different cheeses with biscuits and grapes.

3. Which of the following is NOT mentioned as a type of restaurant in Britain?

- ア Chinese
- イ Indian
- ウ Italian
- エ Moroccan

4. How many Indian restaurants were there in Britain in 1950?

- ア About 300
- イ Over 8000
- ウ Over 10,000
- エ Not mentioned in the text

5. How did the popularity of Indian food in Britain increase over time?

- ア People started moving from south Asia to Britain in the fifties and sixties.
- イ The British government promoted Indian food as part of a cultural exchange program.
- ウ Indian food comes from the south Asian countries of Pakistan, Nepal, Bangladesh, and Sri Lanka.
- エ British Asians started running many Indian restaurants in Britain.

(問 2) 次の文が本文の内容に合っていれば○、合っていなければ ×と答えなさい。

- 1 Eating out was always affordable for most people in Britain.

VII 次の英文を読み、下の問いに答えなさい。

One of the most beautiful things you can see in Australia is Uluru, also called Ayers Rock. It is an enormous rock alone in the middle of the desert south-west of Alice Springs. It is 3 kilometers long and 348 meters high, but there are another 2,100 meters under the ground. Uluru is 600 million years old, and for a long time people thought that it was the largest rock of its kind in the world. (In fact, Mount Augustus in Western Australia is two and a half times as big as Uluru.) Thousands of tourists come each year to walk round it and look at it. The best time to see it is at the end of the day, when its color changes from yellow to gold, red and then purple. Some visitors like to see Uluru from a plane; others ride out into the desert to see it from a long way away. Uluru is a special place for Aborigines, and it belongs to the Anangu, Aboriginal people of the Pitjantjatjara group.

Then there is the Great Barrier Reef. At 2,500 kilometers it is the world's longest coral reef. Parts of the reef are 20,000 years old, and 1,500 different kinds of fish live there. It is very popular with tourists, who come to visit the islands and beaches, swim in the clear warm water, and take boat rides to see the fish and the coral.

Coober Pedy, which is about 846 kilometers north-west of Adelaide, is a really extraordinary place. The beautiful blue- green stones called opals were first found here in 1915, and more than 90 per cent of the world's opals come from here. But it is very hot and dry — 35 to 45 °C day after day in the summer. So most people live under the ground in houses which are dug out of the rock. Here they can stay cool, and if they want a bigger house, they just dig another room! Coober Pedy's first tree was made of metal, and you can still see it on a hill outside the town. The Aboriginal name 'Coober Pedy' actually means 'white man in a hole'.

Lakes are usually cool and wet — but not in Australia. The big lakes of the desert are dry most of the time. Enormous Lake Eyre, which is 210 kilometers long and 65 kilometers wide, was dry for a hundred years until 1950, and the lake is only full of water about once every eight years. But now there is a Lake Eyre Yacht Club. When it rains, people who belong to the yacht club go to the lake to sail — while they can! Lake Mungo in New South Wales has had no water for 16,000 years.
